The HRB reserves the right to reject any application that does not meet the terms of this call. The decision of the HRB Board in respect of any grant application is final and cannot be appealed or reviewed.

In view of the overwhelming evidence that both active and passive smoking of tobacco are injurious to health, the HRB is unwilling to fund applications from individuals applying for, holding, or employed under a research grant from the tobacco industry.

The HRB cannot fund research using human embryonic stem cells or tissues, or intended to create human embryos solely for the purpose of research or for the purpose of stem cell procurement, including by means of somatic cell nuclear transfer.

This is a two-stage call. Applicants from Ireland in consortia invited to submit a full proposal will be required to provide additional information directly to the HRB, such as justification for budget items.

The following issues will be considered in a HRB eligibility check that will be conducted on any proposals with researchers from host institutions in Ireland:

The investigator(s) from Ireland must be from a recognized host institution.

The PI named on the award must hold a post (permanent or a contract that covers the duration of the award) in a recognised research institution in the Republic of Ireland (the “Host Institution”) as an independent investigator, or is a contract researcher recognised by the Host institution as an independent investigator who will have a dedicated office and research space for the duration of award, for which he/she will be fully responsible, or is an individual who will be recognised by the Host Institution upon receipt of the HRB award as a contract researcher as defined above. The Principal Investigator does not necessarily need to be employed by the Host Institution at the time of the application submission.

The PI has demonstrated research independence through securing at least one peer-reviewed, independent research grant as a Principal Investigator or as Co-Investigator and is a senior author (first, last or corresponding or in those fields where alphabetic order authorship is the norm, joint author) in peer-reviewed scientific journals.

The PI is not requesting their own salary

Any named co-applicants are not requesting their own salary

The Irish component of the budget for the project does not exceed €300k (including overheads)

Only eligible costs have been included:

- Salary-related costs
- Small equipment costs
- Travel
- Direct running costs
- Dissemination and knowledge exchange costs
- Overheads.
